

What Youth Soccer Has Meant To Me

Youth soccer has been an incredibly large part of my life these past 14 years. I have played since I was 4 years old and I do not regret a single minute of it. Soccer has always given me something to do and kept me out of so much trouble. Without soccer I do not know what I would have done all those times that I was bored and ended up going outside and kicking a ball against a fence or playing soccer tennis. This sport has helped to increase my coordination and stamina. It has made me a much healthier and more disciplined person because of my desire to win. Soccer has taught me the importance of being disciplined and organized or else I would never have everything I would need for a tournament or game. Some of my coaches have been very influential people in my life and I will never forget the times I have spent with them or some of the lessons they have taught me. For many years soccer was a place that I could meet friends and develop life long relationships with people. I have met some of my closest friends from soccer and the various activities that are associated with it. I have also been able to see many parts of the country because of tournaments that my family and I have had the pleasure of attending. Without youth soccer I do not think that I would be the person that I am today. I am very thankful for everything I have had the pleasure of seeing and doing while playing soccer.
