

“What Youth Soccer Has Meant To Me”

I have played sports my whole life. In doing so, I have learned that in life you have to have a will to learn, good work ethics, and a love for what you are doing. I remember the first day I stepped out onto the soccer field. It was a bright, sun-shiny day. From that day forth I have played soccer and loved it. When I am on the field I get an amazing rush from the game. Soccer has helped me so many ways in life. I have always felt apart of something. I've also learned you have to work hard to achieve your goals and that having team work is the key to most everything. Playing soccer has made me many memories, friends, and most of all given me the skill and the start that I needed to excel in competitive soccer. Many people go through life with no involvement in anything. I feel blessed to be a part of an organized soccer team. It means so much to me to play youth soccer. I feel that if I hadn't, there would be a void in my life. Every time I put on my soccer uniform and tape up my shin guards, I think of the many memories and skills I have obtained from playing youth soccer. Overall, when I look back at the many years that I have played , I am thankful and glad that I took up the opportunity. For having done so, I am a better soccer player and have learned many life skills from it.
